Caring for a child abuse victim needs multiple-department coordination. Hence JSS Hospital has taken the lead by setting Child Abuse Response Unit. The objective of this unit is to provide care in a manner that complies with regulations and also ensure safety of the child who is suspected or is reported to have been a victim of Child abuse. Various departments like Paediatrics, Obstetrics and Gynaecology, Psychiatry, Forensic Medicine, Emergency medicine and nursing team are the part of this initiative who join forces following a single alert. A multi-disciplinary team is sensitive to the different problems and the whole process is kept confidential. Those patients who require such care, are immediately shifted to a private room and a neutral environment is created and one screening is conducted and forensic samples are collected. No multiple examinations are done thus minimizing the trauma to the patient. All the team members are trained in counselling, treatment, and well versed with legal aspects pertaining to such cases.

Webinar on “Utilizing COVID-19 Pandemic to Strengthen the Dialogue of Access to Essential Medicines and Vaccines”

Department of Pharmacy Practice, JSS College of Pharmacy, JSS Academy of Higher Education & Research, Mysuru in association with Indian Pharmaceutical Association (IPA), Mysuru Branch, Mysuru conducted a webinar on the topic ‘Utilising COVID-19 Pandemic to Strengthen the Dialogue of Access to Essential Medicines and Vaccines’ on 12th August 2020 for the benefit of PharmD and M. Pharm Pharmacy Practice students. Dr. Sunitha Chandrashekar Srinivas, Visiting Professor, Rhodes University, Grahamstown, South Africa was the resource person. The webinar was organised with an objective to identify the need and the importance of access to essential medicines during this COVID-19 pandemic.

Dr. Sunitha Chandrashekar Srinivas, during her talk, she said “we find ourselves in one of the most challenging situations in history”. As the pandemic increasingly affects countries with under- resourced health infrastructure and services, it is an ethical imperative to ensure that all people in all countries of the world are able to access essential medicines. This includes those medicines that are under international control. Governments should ensure that sufficient quantities of internationally controlled medicines, of assured quality, are available and affordable to people under medical care.

Throughout the duration of the pandemic and beyond the acute phase of burden on the healthcare infrastructure, it is critical that governments work cooperatively to ensure that no country, no region, no district, no city and no patient is left behind. Competent national authorities, manufacturers, suppliers and distributors play a crucial role in ensuring that internationally controlled medicines urgently needed for medical treatment are available within and across national borders. The supply chain is the foundation of quality medical care because without the necessary supplies, including essential controlled medicines, patients will suffer.

Also she highlighted that Governments are reminded that in acute emergencies, it is possible under the International Drug Control Conventions to utilize simplified control procedures for the export, transportation and supply of medicinal products containing controlled substances, especially in those cases where the competent authorities in the importing countries may not be operating at full capacity. Competent national authorities may permit the export of medicines containing narcotic drugs and/or psychotropic substances to affected areas even in the absence of the corresponding import authorizations and/or estimates. Countries should ease COVID-19 related transport restrictions for controlled medicines and consider local production solutions when feasible, to meet the COVID-19 driven demand spikes.

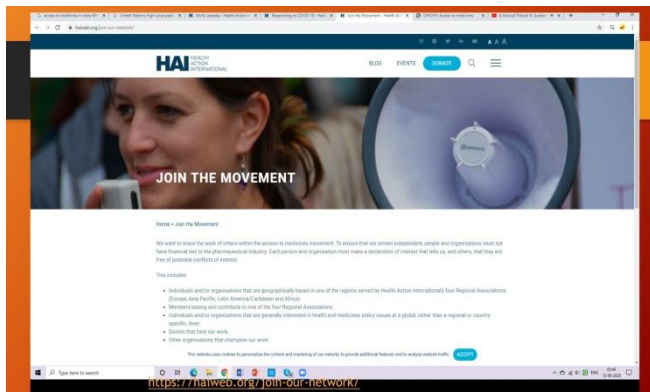

Further, she said about the adoption of the Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS Agreement), many Health Assembly resolutions have requested WHO to address the impact of trade agreements and intellectual property protection on public health and access to health products. The Global strategy and plan of action on public health, innovation and intellectual property, along with other relevant resolutions, constitutes the basic mandate for WHO’s work in this area. As requested by the plan of action, WHO has intensified its collaboration with other relevant international organizations, in particular through trilateral collaboration with WIPO (The World Intellectual Property Organization) and World Trade Organisation, as well as with other organizations, including UNCTAD (The United Nations Conference on Trade and Development) and UNDP (The United Nations Development Programme).

Trilateral cooperation with WIPO and WTO is fostering a better understanding of the linkage between public health and intellectual property policies and enhancing a mutually supportive implementation of those policies. This activity area supports countries by fostering innovation and access to health products through appropriate intellectual property rules and management and by providing technical support and capacity-building.

Webinar on “Managing the Double Edged Sword: Antimicrobial Resistance and COVID”

Department of Pharmacy Practice, JSS College of Pharmacy, JSS Academy of Higher Education & Research, Mysuru in association with Indian Pharmaceutical Association (IPA), Mysuru Branch, Mysuru conducted a webinar on the topic “Managing the Double Edged Sword – Antimicrobial Resistance and COVID” on 19th August 2020 for the benefit of PharmD and M. Pharm Pharmacy Practice students. Dr. Sunitha Chandrashekar Srinivas, Visiting Professor, Rhodes University, Grahamstown, South Africa was the resource person. The webinar was organised with an objective to enhance the understanding on potential implications of some of the current management practices and practicalities of managing the novel coronavirus outbreak in relation to antimicrobial resistance (AMR).

During her talk, she said, “we are in the midst of the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, the most significant global health event since Spanish influenza in the early 20th century.” She told that there are evidences in implementing draconian measures around the worldwide to try to slow the spread of the virus. Also, she said that the Antimicrobial resistance (AMR) and it has been cited as the most significant threat to the global health and global economy in recent years and which is now likely to be eclipsed by COVID-19.

Also, she mentioned that the emergence of COVID-19 also presents some important consequences for the development of AMR and with COVID-19 patients contracting secondary bacterial infections the use of antibiotics should be cautious and judicious. Further, she said that the use of antimicrobial soaps and disinfectant cleaners by members of the community and in the hospital will have increased hugely over the last few months and the higher usage is likely to continue, and may even remain high following the outbreak due to changes in infection and control policy or individual habits. However, she cautioned that due to the COVID-19 pandemic, higher concentrations of biocides are likely to be detected in wastewater treatment plants and receiving waters. This may increase levels of AMR in the environment, posing a human health risk for individuals exposed to these environments. Lastly, she concluded that the potential implications, both good and bad, of some of the current management practices and practicalities of managing the novel coronavirus outbreak in relation to AMR have been linked and the public and other stakeholders should be awake.
